STATION ORDER 10550.1

From: Commanding General
To: Distribution List

Subj: SQUADRON COMMON RADIO SERVICE

1. Purpose. To establish instructions for the installation, maintenance, relocation and discontinuance of Squadron Common Radio Service per references (a) and (b).

2. Information. The Ground Electronics Maintenance Division (GEMD) G-6, MCAS Miramar provides, 3d Marine Aircraft Wing (3d MAW), Marine Aircraft Group (MAG)-46, and visiting Airwings and Squadrons with Squadron Common Radio Service. This service enables squadron to communicate directly with their aircraft, either airborne or on the flight line, from the Squadron's Ready Room and/or Maintenance Control. GEMD provides and maintains the equipment as well as the required connectivity. Connectivity is provided via the base cable plant between the remote control units and the transmitters and receivers located at their respective sites.

3. Action

a. New Installation and/or Relocation Request. There are significant costs and technical requirements associated with the installation or relocation of Squadron Common Radio net service. Prior to any installation and/or relocation of remote units and/or consoles, each squadron will notify the Ground Electronics Maintenance Officer. Commanding Officers will forward requests to the Communication Officer, G-6, MCAS Miramar, 30 days prior to date requested. The organization requesting the installation and/or relocation will bear all costs to include the long-term lease of commercial land lines required to complete circuit connectivity.

b. Custodial Responsibility. All equipment is the property of MCAS Miramar. Therefore, squadrons will not remove, relocate or alter the equipment. The squadron and/or using organization assumes custodial responsibility for the equipment, once it is installed.

c. Maintenance Responsibility. The GEMD is responsible for the maintenance of all squadron common radio equipment. Problems with the remote control units must be reported to the GEMD technicians at Bldg. K-211. Telephone number: 619-577-4998 or after hours 619-577-4850.

d. Temporary Discontinuance of Service. Due to the highly pilferable nature of the remote control devices, deploying units that do not leave a rear party element capable of maintaining custody of the equipment (i.e., UDP deployments) must request discontinuance of service and removal of the remote control unit(s). Squadrons will notify GEMD of the need to discontinue. The GEMD will coordinate with the using organization's S-3 for a schedule date and time of equipment disconnect and removal. This will allow for uninterrupted service to the user as well as control of the equipment. Upon notification from the returning squadron/using organization, the GEMD will coordinate with the advance party to schedule a date and time for equipment to be returned and reconnected.

e. Permanent Discontinuance of Service. Once service has been permanently disconnected, reconnection at a later date will require a request for new service per paragraph 3a. The requesting activity will bear all the cost associated with service reestablishment.

4. Concurrence. The Commanding General, 3d Marine Aircraft Wing and Commanding Officer, Marine Aircraft Group 46 concur in the provision of the Order.
